TippingPoint Named 2009 Enterprise Security Vendor of the Year by Arabian Computer News

DUBAI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES – OCTOBER 28, 2009 – Arabian Computer News (ACN) has named TippingPoint as the Enterprise Security Vendor of the Year as part of its 2009 Arab Technology Awards. The Arab Technology Awards recognize those IT professionals and organizations that are really making technology work - delivering on the promise of bringing real value to the business using IT.

Nominees competed in 16 categories that include work in key vertical sectors, the innovation and support delivered by vendors and partners to their customers, and the prestigious CIO of the Year award. TippingPoint was selected by a panel of industry experts and independent third parties as the Enterprise Security Vendor of the Year for its commitment to the enterprise computing community and its broad range of enterprise customers across every vertical, particularly telecommunications, government and banking and finance.

“ACN is a highly respected publication for the IT community in this region and the Arab Technology Awards are definitely one of the most prestigious IT industry awards,” said Neeti Rodrigues, regional sales director - India & GCC. “We are honored to have our achievements recognized by such an influential organization.”

About ACN

ACN, ITP Technology publication, is the region’s first enterprise IT publication written for high-ranking IT professionals and CxOs looking to bring real business change. For the past 24 years, ACN (an ITP Technology Publication) has been the de facto monthly guide for information technology professionals and Clevel executives who truly want to understand the benefits IT can bring to their businesses. Each month ACN provides its readers with in-depth details of the latest Middle East IT projects and analysis of the hottest global technology issues. It also delivers real business insights into the trends spanning both technologies and industry. Each year ACN hosts the Arab Technology Awards at the GITEX Technology Week. This award lauds both corporate and individual achievement by vendors, integrators and end users, acknowledging the projects that shine as beacons of excellence.
